flipped classroom, a student will play a role of an active self-learner and researcher rather than a passive consumer of educational service. The major difference and benefit for the professor is forming student-centered relations, where the professor tends to be a friend, main advisor and facilitator of the educational process, revealing the unpredictable world of science for their students.

Acknowledgments
The research work was carried out at the Lappeenranta University of Technology and Ural Federal University.

References

