Conclusions

The findings of the study confirm the strong connection between the foreign languages teachers’ participation activity rate in specially focused network communities and the level of development of their professional self-realization.

References

