accelerating job-related experiences as well as accruing the required qualifications. For example, women’s professional experience and knowledge in line-role positions (such as serving as a school principal) significantly improves their practical knowledge and job opportunities for career development.

Acknowledgement

Hankuk University of Foreign Studies partly sponsored this study for publication.

References

